2012 Harrisonburg Citizen Academy Announced

Applications Now Available

Harrisonburg, VA — The 2012 Harrisonburg Citizen Academy is now accepting applications.

The academy will begin its seventh annual session on August 30, 2012 and conclude November 15, 2012. The free program is open to all city residents 18 years of age and older. For twelve weeks, participants meet on Thursday evenings for two hours to learn more about the functions and services of city government from the people who provide those services. An optional Saturday facilities tour is also available to participants.

“The Citizen Academy provides an opportunity for residents of Harrisonburg to learn more about the city and the city’s services,” said City Manager Kurt Hodgen. “We have had nothing but positive feedback from program participants and look forward to another great year.”

The class size is limited to 15 people. Applications are available in city offices or online at www.HarrisonburgVA.gov/citizens-academy. Applications are due in the City Manager’s Office by five in the afternoon on Thursday August 16, 2012.
