Stay Connected to Harrisonburg

Harrisonburg, VA – For the City of Harrisonburg, getting information to the community through various channels is important.

While the City has had a presence online for a while, more departments are increasing that presence by turning to social media to disseminate information to the public and to connect with residents and visitors.

Heritage Oaks Golf Course recently joined the social media scene by creating a Twitter account (<https://twitter.com/HeritageOaksGC>). While the golf course has already been on Facebook, adding another social media site will only enhance communication from the golf course to the public.

“Our ultimate goal is to get information out about the golf course and the City in order to draw people in to visit Harrisonburg and inform residents,” explained Mary-Hope Vass, Harrisonburg’s Public Information Officer.

There are several different ways to stay connected to the City of Harrisonburg through the website and social media sites.
