Harrisonburg Community Survey

Harrisonburg, VA – The City of Harrisonburg will soon embark upon a new adventure in asking for and receiving feedback from the community.

Starting this week, 1,200 households will receive notice that they have been randomly selected to participate in a survey to evaluate and provide feedback on a variety of city and community-related services. Responses are completely anonymous and the survey may be completed and returned by mail or participants can take the survey online.

The survey will be conducted by the International City/County Management Association (ICMA) and the National Research Center (NRC).

“We are excited to go through this process and capture the data that will give insight to the services that are provided by the city,” said Mary-Hope Vass, Public Information Officer.

Since there are only 1,200 surveys distributed within the community, it is vital for all selected households to fill out and return the survey.

Two surveys will be sent to each household, one will be in English and the other will be translated in to Spanish.

Once the data is collected and evaluated, results will be available to the public.
