Continuing Education on Single Stream Collection

Harrisonburg, Va. – The city of Harrisonburg’s Public Works Department continues its outreach and education efforts to ensure the community is knowledgeable and informed of the Single Stream Collection Program.

Staff has compiled a list of the most frequently asked questions and answers regarding the new waste and recycling collection program. These questions were the most common inquiries received on social media, in emails and through phone calls to staff and posted to www.HarrisonburgVA.gov/single-stream-collection.

“Single Stream Collection is a new concept and if one resident has a question, it is very likely that many others share that same question or concern,” explained Harsit Patel, business services manager with the Public Works Department. “We want to help everyone better understand this new program and how we can all make it successful.”

Additional information on the processing facility and what happens to your waste and recyclable material has also been posted to the website at www.HarrisonburgVA.gov/single-stream-collection.

Since the recycling bins are no longer needed, there is still time to post your new, innovative idea of what you will do with the recycling bins to www.BeHeardHarrisonburg.org.
