City Names New Director

Harrisonburg, Va. – The city of Harrisonburg announces the appointment of its new director of Planning and Community Development.

Adam Fletcher was selected from a candidate pool of 40 applicants. He has served as the acting director since September 2015, following the retirement of Stacy Turner. The director is responsible for the management of the city’s planning and zoning, engineering, surveying, building inspections, and GIS functions.

“Adam has done an outstanding job as acting director and we believe he will continue to do so in this new capacity, said Kurt Hodgen, city manager. “We anticipate this transition to be seamless for city staff as well as the customers served by the department.”

Mr. Fletcher began working for the city in 2004 and for almost nine years has served as the city planner. He received his undergraduate degree in Environmental Studies from Allegheny College and master’s degree in Public Administration from James Madison University.
