HRECC Launches Twitter Account

June 17, 2016

Harrisonburg, VA – The Harrisonburg-Rockingham Emergency Communications Center (HRECC) is pleased to announce the launch of its new Twitter account.

This Twitter account will work in conjunction with the HRECC’s existing Facebook page to keep the public informed of important information such as road closures, weather information, traffic delays, emergency notifications, event notifications, and more.

The HRECC strives to keep the community informed and to provide educational posts that promote the partnership between public safety and the Harrisonburg and Rockingham County communities.

“Public interaction and education is a very important part of our success,” said Jim Junkins, HRECC director.

“Twitter is just another way that we can proactively reach out to assist our citizens,” added Sam Sencindiver, technology coordinator with HRECC.

Follow the HRECC on Twitter @HRECC.
