City Invites Public to Learn About the Stormwater Improvement Plan

Harrisonburg, Va. – The city of Harrisonburg’s Public Works Department and the Stormwater Advisory Committee invites the public to an open house meeting to discuss the stormwater improvement plan.

On Wednesday, March 22 a meeting will be held from 5:00 p.m. until 7:00 p.m. at the Community Activities Center, 305 S. Dogwood Drive. At this informational meeting the community will have the opportunity to ask questions and learn about the stormwater improvement plan.

This meeting will be held in an open house format and a formal presentation will not take place. Members of the public are welcome to come and go at their convenience.

“Everyone contributes to the pollutants that enter our local waterways,” explained Kelley Junco, environmental compliance manager with Public Works. “With the ongoing stormwater utility fee and credit program, residents now have the opportunity to be part of the solution.”

This plan outlines how the stormwater utility fee funds are invested on projects to filter, control, and treat polluted runoff before it reaches local waterways and ultimately the Chesapeake Bay.

At the conclusion of the informational meeting, a public comment period will be open from March 22 until April 5.
