City Crews Work to Repair Break

Harrisonburg, Va. – The city of Harrisonburg’s Public Utilities Department has responded to a water main break along Rawley Pike.

This morning, crews responded to Rawley Pike, near the intersection of Muddy Creek Road, to begin repairing a water main that had ruptured.

At this time, customers in the 4000 to 6000 blocks of Rawley Pike will experience an interruption in water service during the repair. Residents west of the 6000 block of Rawley Pike are encouraged to conserve water until the break is fully repaired.

One lane of Rawley Pike will be closed while crews are working in the area. Motorists should use caution and slow down when driving through the work zone.

The repair work is expected to last into the evening hours.
