Snider Named as Assistant to the City Manager

Harrisonburg, Va. – City Manager Eric D. Campbell has officially named Amy Snider as assistant to the city manager.

Snider currently serves as the lead policy analyst for the DeKalb County Board of Commissioners, in DeKalb County, Georgia. Amy received her undergraduate degree from Syracuse University and a Master's Degree in Public Administration from the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University.

"I am excited to welcome Amy to Harrisonburg and the City's Executive Leadership Team. Her background, education and passion for public service are tremendous assets and I am looking forward to her applying those strengths to the management and leadership of Harrisonburg," explained Eric D. Campbell, City Manager.

"It is an honor to be appointed as assistant to the city manager. I am very much looking forward to working with residents, city staff and city leadership on projects and programs across the city," shared Amy Snider.

The City of Harrisonburg is an organization of thirteen departments, over 800 employees and a 2019 fiscal year budget of more than $260 Million.

Amy Snider will begin her role with the City Manager's Office on Wednesday, January 30. Her annual salary will be $88,109.
