HPD Case Featured on Television Show

Harrisonburg, VA – An investigation that started in Harrisonburg will soon gain a lot more attention.

The murder investigation of Greg Brown will be aired on Friday, Sept. 28 on the television show “America’s Most Wanted.”

Television film crews recorded the segment in Harrisonburg this past spring.

“We were excited to work with the television show for this case to gain the attention of viewers from around the world,” said Lieutenant Chris Rush, HPD’s Criminal Investigations Division Commander.

Ali Abid is wanted for first-degree murder and the use of a firearm while in the commission of a felony. Police have been looking for him since the investigation began in March 2011.

This episode will air on Lifetime at 9 p.m.

Police are still asking anyone with information on Ali Abid’s whereabouts to contact Crime Solvers. Tipsters can text “HPD” plus the tip to CRIMES (274637) or call the anonymous tip line at 540-574-5050.

The victim’s family put together a video that can be viewed by clicking on the following link <http://youtu.be/R2FpWdxVhcU>.
