New Substation Opening

Harrisonburg, VA – The Harrisonburg Police Department (HPD) is pleased to announce the opening of a new police substation in partnership with the Rockingham Group Insurance Company. Police substations are the physical demonstration of the community policing initiative, a concept HPD has adopted in recent years. “We are please to support the Harrisonburg Police Department as they serve our community. The creation of a new substation in the Rockingham Group office will allow the patrol officers to spend more time in the field helping people,” says Bob Lyon, President/CEO of the Rockingham Group.

The new substation is located at the corporate office of the Rockingham Group on East Market Street in Harrisonburg. This location provides 24/7 work space for the officers while adding protection and safety to that area of the city. “As we strive to work with residents to solve problems versus simply reacting to calls for service, partnerships with companies like the Rockingham Group make that initiative possible,” says Lieutenant Rod Pollard, Supervisor of Patrol Operations.

The Rockingham Group joins many other businesses in Harrisonburg by providing substations for officers including the Valley Mall, Mini Stor-It on East Mosby Road, and Primary Residential Mortgage, Inc. on Neff Avenue.
