Update: Missing Child Found Safe

Harrisonburg, Va. – The Harrisonburg Police Department (HPD) is no longer searching for the missing child as he has been located unharmed.

On January 16, officers with HPD began searching for Jace Alexander Coffey, 4, of Harrisonburg who was reported missing after not being returned to his father at the appropriate time.

The child was last seen on January 15 with his mother, Kimberly Ann Campbell, 23, of Stanley for an overnight stay.

Officers and family of Kimberly were unable to reach her after the two never arrived at their destination in Stanley, which prompted an investigation into their whereabouts.

On January 17, officers with the Stanley Police Department located Kimberly and Jace at a residence in Stanley where her vehicle was seen.

Both individuals were unharmed and Jace has been returned to his father.

No criminal charges have been filed at this time.
